

GIVE PEACE A CHANCE

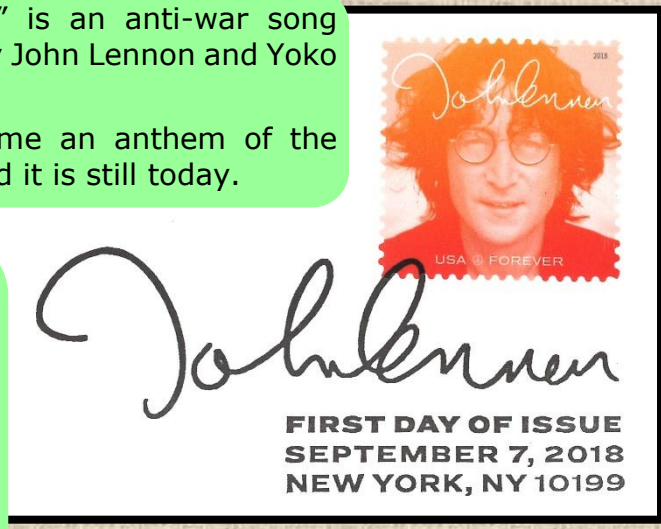

A SONG BY JOHN LENNON & YOKO ONO

Gibraltar 1999 – Wedding of John Lennon and Yoko Ono thirty years ago

"Give Peace a Chance" is an anti-war song recorded in July 1969 by John Lennon and Yoko Ono. The song quickly became an anthem of the anti-war movement, and it is still today.

After their wedding in Gibraltar in March 1969, John Lennon and Yoko Ono started their actions for peace, which lasted several months and caused a great international press furor.

On the last day of the actions, John Lennon and Yoko Ono had a recording device brought to their room at the "Queen Elizabeth Hotel" in Montreal and played the song live. John Lennon sat on the bed with his guitar next to Yoko Ono.

Meter stamp of "Queen Elizabeth Hotel"

St. Vincent 1995 - Sheet margin with a line of text from "Give Peace a Chance"

Ofra Haza

In 1991, Yoko Ono recorded a new version of the song in response to the imminent Gulf War. Accompanying musicians in the "Peace Choir" included Ofra Haza and Lenny Kravitz.

Lenny Kravitz

As a sign against the Russian invasion, almost 400 European radio stations played the song simultaneously in 2022.

